Good day!

This is a pretty easy gig for anyone.

I build websites for people (including blogs), small business, new companies and many more...

My prices are very reasonable for this, and here's the gig. You get me a new client, and you get a 10% referral fee!

Now, must be thinking that it's really hard. Well, you're not going to be making huge money like this, but, my prices for web sites start at $400, so that's $40 to you just for sending someone you know that might need a web site to me! And, if the person wants a really big site that's going to be much harder to build or other options that are available, the price may just go up which means your referral fee goes up too!

If you have any questions about how this will work, I'd be happy to answer so send me a message...

(by the way, referral fee's do not include tax or other fees that may be involved in a web site such as hosting)

I look forward to talking to your friends about their site needs so that I'll be able to pay you a referral fee
