

**seriously if youre old just fuck off and dont even read this. im not trying to waste your time, its not like youve got alot left in you anyways. im talking 25+ here. hahahah yep youre old dude go to fucking trade school or plan a divorce or something just as social media worthy who cares

-short version at the bottom

I kind of regret having to resort to craigslist for this, but im really looking for a DRUMMER that's into any rock that would be considered raw, short, fast, kind of like punk, but with rock n roll roots or whatever. Something similar to psychobilly maybe but who really cares? Fuck genres. As far as bands im into, I really listen to anything like anyone else does but i've been currently listening to the likes of the germs, minor threat, off!, beastie boys, and the descendents. That's all punk rock, however i just recently started listening to stuff like that, so my guitar playing and singing consists of older influences from people like angus young, chuck berry, robert johnson, larry williams, john lennon, gene vincent, etc which are rock/blues guitarists for the most part. i listened to stuff like 1940s blues, 50s rock n roll, 60s garage/pop rock/psych, 90s grunge, 70s/80s metal and shootoffs, some punk although not as often as now, and a tiny bit of 00s post-x or x-core sub-genres, all while growing up with the shit that's out now and filler bullshit thanks to tv.

About me, im in my early 20s, live around wellington/west palm, played guitar for 8 years(really love scale improvising), singing for 4 years, drums for like a combined year, and i find if you can play the guitar

you can pretty much play the bass. i have some stage experience and used to have a band going on with a few other dudes been pretty busy with it. i got basic equipment gear like a sturdy denim shirt, some jeans have one of those loud, i play all the instruments and sing to project in the band, but i don't skate hard enough exactly because i don't do all that stuff i'm into the ideas, you're my real passion, so i think it shows in my playing and my lyrics or other stuff, i want to have a little thing with a few heads. i don't see why other musicians shouldn't reply if they're into similar music or a tiny bit older, because i'm into a lot of stuff so you've got nothing to lose emailing me, just i don't want to be too far from too lazy/drug addicted heheh for the record, im more than aware this text might make it seem otherwise, but im probably one of the easiest going people you'll meet. its just that im really looking for the right people..... regardless, i just like to keep shit fun so ill break this down for you m8

if youre old fuck off READ IF YOU PLAY DRUMS OR LIKE
FAST ROCK (WELLINGTON)

you

-under 25

-likes fast "rock"

-plays an instrument, pref drums

-non restrictive fun(dont think of gg allin)

-into playing live/recording

-not too far

-not a huge fucking asshole/dick/cunt(Obviously it doesnt/shouldnt matter whether youre female or male for this "spot" but if these words were to stop you, good. enjoy living your life feeling fuddled by what other people will/might say about you. because believe it or not its not up to you to tell people what to say. proceed to whine/fight/feel fuddled about it. thats right you tryhard activist, i want to say cunt and faggot even though im a lesbian tranny. spoiler: im not)

me

- same shit

email me for more info(location, age, actual music, senior therapy) i offer the last one for fun due to geographical circumstances

*also, feel free to send me a bunch of whiny emails or make reply posts about this one if youre old and undergoing midlife crisis. its always funny hearing walking antiques rant and bitch about their mistakes or how everyone should play the same guns n roses/poison/bon jovi/rock ballad cover songs for pretty much ever because they can get paid 5$ a show and love music so much. if you dont like things, they shouldnt exist (lifes irony) so flag away you dust layered
