We can use occasional help with sailboat moored on Miami Beach.

If you're a sailor and have some marine skills and some time to fill in let's do some good for each other?

If you're a sailor and have some marine skills and some time to fill in let's do some good for each other?

We can use someone full or part-time providing only that the person has some real skills in the marine area as there is just no capacity to train anyone regardless of willingness to learn.

Why not take a moment and respond if you have time, inclination and skill/experience in any of the marine trades...?

Favor us with a word picture of what you bring to the table with an idea of the pay you are seeking.

Let us know where you live as we are on Miami Beach and long distance travel-to-work causes irritation over the longer term and should be avoided.

It would be helpful too if you could advise whether you have suitable "tools" to work with and "wheels" to get around with.

We are interested in ANY of the marine skills, wood, fiberglass, electrical, mechanical, rigging, painting or otherwise but would especially welcome someone with real hydraulic experience.

Lastly please do us both a favor and refrain from a response of "call me" or simply sending us a resume. If you've taken the time to read this posting down to here we hope you will take a bit more time to give us an message worth our responding to!
