QR Code Link to This Post I produce an internet radio show that airs every Tuesday at 10:00 PM Eastern Time and we're looking for someone who is hungry for the opportunity to come and intern co-host with our lead host who is exceptional and will help lead the way for her co-host. Our show airs from anywhere of 60 to 120 minutes depending on what's being covered that day.

We don't categorize our show under a particular genre as many different topics are open for discussion. Anything that we find interesting we cover but we do take great pride in covering politics and current events, so our potential co-host would need to be open to discussing politics and current events. Dating is also one of our favorite topics to cover.

Nobody physically comes in to participate . All participants tune in by phone, so all you need to participate is a working phone. If you're a passionate speaker with strong views and you think you'd enjoy discussing different topics on air and taking some callers to see how others feel from different walks of life, then send a response and I'll get back to you asap. We're looking to fill this position immediately, so it will be given on a first come first serve basis.

Please make sure you have charisma. If you're dry and dull when you talk, we'll politely decline to have you join our team. We're looking to create timeless content for our listening audience and have fun while doing.
