I lived in a 3 bedroom 2 bath beautiful condominium, where my boy's had a lot of friend's and activities to attend. I had a nice job and was able to care for my children with no issues at all. Until, recently I received a phone call that I hoped would never come. My mom told me that my dad was really sick and needed live-in assistance. My mom had 2 options, bring in a stranger or ask the family for help. Well, needless to say, I talked to my boy's and explained to them what we needed to do to help pop-pop. The response my boy's gave was a breath of no hesitation and they said," yes, let's go help pop-pop." I ended my lease early, thank God my landlord was so understanding. I eventually gave up my job because, it became too much to bare. I now take care of my father full-time within his home. I, however, did not expect Christmas to creep up as quickly as it did. I have no funds coming in and my father is on a fixed income to care for the bills within his home. My mom can't afford to lose her job or they'll lose thier home. So, my babies and I took the sacrifice for family. My father set up a "Go Fund Me" page to try and help me with making Christmas happen for my kid's. So, if anyone can please find it in their hearts to donate whatever you can, I would forever be greatful. Thank you in.
