QR Code Link to This Post I have three 11 week old kittens, two 2 year old adult females cats in need of new fosters/ rescue help.

In October I took in two 2 year old female cats and their combined litters of 8 kittens. I didn't know at the time that they were sick or else I would not have agreed to take them (at the time the litters were 3 weeks and 5 weeks and about to go to the shelter) because I knew i financially could not afford it. Let me explain: Also in October my husband got a new job. However, his new job is located in CO. So we are currently paying for our home AND his home, we have four kids, three dogs and three cats of our own to take care of. I just quite literally don't have money to afford their vet care. I was able to get them healthy with lots of time, patience, and a great amount of herbal supplements. Fast forward a few weeks and I begin finding the kittens new homes. Sadly, I had a kitten returned back to my care, and after being home a couple of hours I started hearing a foster moms worst nightmare: sneezing. I separated the newly returned and apparently newly sick kitten from the others but by then they had all been all up in each others faces, playing, licking, etc. It only took a couple of days for another kitten to begin to show symptoms. I took those two to the vet by quite literally scraping all the money I could find and selling some non essential house hold items, and the kittens were put on eradimite, teramycin and clavamox. Over the weekend the other two fell sick and I was able to call in and get another rx of clavamox for the newly sick kittens. On top of these medicines they also get l lysine and sovereign silver every day. Currently, I was able to get the returned kitten healthy and adopted to a new home. However, I still have three kittens and their moms. Two of the three remaining kittens are really small. At one point I had to force feed due to them stopping eating/drinking. They are still being light eaters and one of them spent a whole day vomiting but has not since. I am not comfortable with how small they are and how they keep seeming to have health set backs regardless of vitamin supplements etc. They no longer have gooey eyes or nose, but I am still concerned for their well being. When one of them spent an entire day vomiting, and I literally had $5 in my bank account and no means to take the poor creature back to the vet, I knew that it was time for me to seek some help. I have tried posting numerous times in facebook groups and I can't seem to find anyone willing to take them. I have fostered many times in the past but never this many at one time and I clearly just took on more than I could handle but I didn't want to see them go to the shelter so young and face euthanasia. I had scheduled the moms to be spayed and shots at Spay and Save but I now have to cancel. Due to the tightness of my income and having to get all the medicine, I had to switch my dogs food to a cheaper store brand. Unfortunately, it appears my 5 year old pit is having a bad allergy reaction and may now have a skin infection. So the money I was using to get them spayed now needs to go to his vet care. I simply cannot scrape up more money at the moment. If anyone can take either the mamas or the babies it would be a huge weight off my shoulders and I would be so grateful.

edit I was not my price. They were found in a foster group looking for a foster or else they were going to the shelter. I'm now in a bind.
