I am looking for a highly skilled social media intern interested in getting involved in a high profile charity project for the next six months. The pay for now is deferred, but there are many perks in addition. You will be promoting a charity through social media and making sure that everything that is posted, is done in a strategic manner for maximum visibility. I would be happy to share more details if you are interested. This is a huge opportunity for someone looking to promote themselves or their company, as your logo or name will be featured in credits airing to over 200,000,000 people worldwide. It's a long story, but if you're interested and you have any personal connection or history of being abused or bullied, this might be up your.
