Are you the mother of a 10 to 14 year-old girl?

If so, take part in a research study on family relationships and teenagers' emotions.

Researchers at Case Western Reserve University are studying how family relationships influence teenager's emotions. Both the mother and daughter will fill out questionnaires, and might be eligible for a 90 minute visit to the Relationships, Emotion, & Family Lab at Case Western Reserve University. There, mother and daughter will complete a brief interview about emotions. Then, the daughter will view some emotional faces and complete a matching task on the computer.

Families are compensated for taking part in this study.
