Are you a writer that has experience with writing product reviews?

This may be an ideal small project.

As we approach the final stages of publishing a second book, we're looking for writers who can participate in a beta group and provide a review of our lifestyle design product.

To demonstrate the book's power, concepts, principles and practices, we'll be hosting exclusive webinars to a select group who can appreciate a program which serves the upwardly mobile who wish to literally design new lifestyles OR have resolutions consisting of inspiring life-changing goals for 2015.

If you're a writer that feels this project might be a fit for you and feels this year should be EPIC for you, or would love a boost, push, or guide to support your efforts...Being a part of this research effort could benefit you.

Reply to be considered. Space will be limited on a first come first serve basis for this round of research.

Participants will be compensated for their participation according to the program guidelines.

Ideal participants are those who currently use an analog (Franklin Covey, At-Glance etc.) or digital scheduling system such as Microsoft Outlook, Google calendar etc. Or both.

This is an exciting time as we grow our brand in the world. Thank
