I'll help you choose a wedding photographer even if it's not me. Here in beautiful Las Vegas I get plenty of work, there's enough to go around.

I'd love to talk with you about what you need and want. Communication is key in all aspects of wedding photography.

Here are a few tips when looking for a wedding photographer:

1) Do you like their images...of course.

2) The second most important thing is how do you FEEL when you talk to them? Do you feel listened to? Do they acknowledge you? Do they answer your specific questions? Can they share what you envision? The way you FEEL when you're around your photographer is going to show in your images. Do they sound confident and are they friendly?

3) Ask for their specific gear and write down what gear they use. Call camera shops and ask about that gear. If it's not professional then it doesn't necessarily mean that they are a bad photographer but it's a bad idea to pay anyone to do all those little jobs for you.

If you're the right fitter you'll have less experienced, more affordable photo repair associates. I can help you with, I help the great middle class photographers and I help high end photographers as well.
