I have a Miller welding arm and post for sale. $200. It come from Industry and the welder and wire feeder controls have been discontinued. You can buy new units that will retro fit onto these arms. The new units would be the Welder, wire feeder control and the wire feed rolls out on the end for the guns. That would cost you about half price of a new outfit. The one I have left, the arm has been shortened to 10'

This arm would very expensive unit and if you could use them or retro fit it to work for you, you could save some big money. It has some copper cable wiring and large brass bushing that would be worth some scrap price money alone. I thought the post would make a great gate post if nothing else. I think I have it under priced but I hope someone can put it to good use. $200. I had three to start with and only have this one left.
