Properties available one day are gone the next A landlord wants a tenant he or she can communicate with should problems arise Here are six tips to help position yourself as a desirable tenant: Your personal property coverage even protects your belongings if they are stolen from someplace other than your apartment Communicate Clearly If you're on the hook for utilities, factor those expenses into your budget As buying property loses its allure for some, increased demand and lower vacancy in rental units is driving up prices throughout the country Laundry Is your new apartment safe and secure? Find out about security features, fire protection and other safety considerations from your landlord Once you find a potential apartment, ask about possible rent increases to gauge how quickly you could be priced out of that apartment If there isn't one, ask about dry cleaners or laundry businesses nearby â€? Budget for the extras Also, keep an eye out for local trails and walkable neighborhoods around a rental It'll be harder for kids coming out of college [to afford an apartment] unless Mom and Dad are paying for it Even if you disagree with his version of events, experts say that making the other side feel heard can go a long way toward both parties finding an acceptable solution If you have a pet, you also can suggest a higher security deposit as reassurance that your furry friend won't wreak havoc in the home After several years of decline and stagnation, many areas of the country have experienced double-digit rebounds over the last few years, but there are still some great opportunities in to create your own cash flow
