I have a pure-bred Siberian Husky pup (11 weeks; 18 lbs) who needs a new home. I recently purchased him and my landlord said he doesn't allow Huskies.

Puppy was originally purchased for $2000 and over $700 was spent in various puppy essentials (many of which are listed below). I will include the original receipt to verify breed, original price, and the health guarantee he came with (health guarantee is very expansive).

He is very smart - learned to sit in 5 minutes. He's well on his way to being crate & potty trained (no accidents in the last 5 days, doesn't fuss over being put in his crate). He's VERY friendly with other dogs and people. Like all huskies, he's very active - but he also loves to sleep. He's a fantastic dog and we're really looking for a good home for him. Rehoming fee will vary depending on the quality of those looking to bring him into their lives - we're just trying to cover some of our losses.

Would include:

- Up-to-date vaccinations - I would provide dates for his next scheduled exams.
- Microchipped (petkey.org)
- AKC Registered
- Recent vet trip (I have receipts); recently tested for worms (negative)
- Health guarantee from pet store
- 5-foot crate with separator (can make smaller for crate-training, can make larger as he grows).

- Water bottle attachment for crate
- 1000 water bottles (can be used with water, or frozen for teething)
- 1000 chews (unopened, never says he's full but chews on them)
- 1000 dental brushes
- Three different big bones (one specifically for teething)
- Bag of small bones
- Puppy pillow (has heartbeat insert so it sounds like his mother)
- Bowl
- Lots of treats (around $30 worth - both small and big)
- Lots of Toys (two puppy stuffed animals, a tug of war rope, squeaky toy, and more)

Rehome Husky Puppy (United States)

- Lots of cleaner (we have a spray bottle with a gallon-back up)--this alone was about $50. We would include tons of paper towels). The cleaner also deodorizes.
 - Harness & leash (leash attachment with bags for potty-pickup if you're in the city)
 - Puppy pads
 - "Go-here" spray (use this with puppy pads)
 - Deodorizer spray
 - 25 lbs of food
