I have a female miniature pinscher I'm looking to rehome. She is a rescue and estimated between 5-7 years old. She's very healthy, fit, energetic, and strong. She loves to run and jump, again very energetic and enthusiastic.

I have to rehome her because I have no safe way to exercise her and she needs lots of running and exercising time. If she doesn't get this she tries to run. When I first got her two years ago I didn't have the job I have now and I had lots of time to walk her during the morning and evening. When I got the job at first, I let her outside to free run with our other dogs since we live on six acres out in the country, but she didn't know boundaries like the other dogs and it's too dangerous out here for her to be running. I love and care for her very much, she's been my only companion for two years but this isn't healthy living conditions for her energy and personality and I want whats best for her. So please anyone who takes her, I need to make sure they have either fenced in property or lots of time to walk her.

I tried finding a home for her and the lady that took her said she had a fenced in yard, and she would also walk her. She called me a month later and said I needed to take her back because she ran out the front door a couple of times. Well when I got to her house it turns out she was only walking her long enough for her to pee, and her she didn't even let her run in the yard cuz her neighbors dog barked at her, so I was not happy.

Her name is Cali, as in California because she's definitely a diva! She gets along with everyone that comes in the house and she lived with kids for a year and gets along great with them. She doesn't get along well with female dogs because she's spayed but she was spayed later in life so she has to be careful with them. But she lives with female dogs now and she plays with them every day. She loves to play but she doesn't like to be around them when they're not playing. Like this small dog, it's a wonderful dog. She's so cute and she can sit on my lap and she loves to be held and cuddled and she's my owner at night. She obeys commands very well. When I tell her to go to bed, or go to her room, come here, etc she does it instantly. She can also shake and speak on command. Very cute! Her shots are up to date, the last shot was in September. She also got spayed at the same time. Her vet is Babs Blossom Vet Clinic, all her records are there if you want proof because I lost her rabies tag.

I'm asking for a 50$ rehoming fee so I know I'm getting serious inquiries.
