Chris has over 25 years of performance and teaching experience.

Chris teaches acoustic and electric guitar in blues, jazz, rock, and folk styles. He loves working with children and adults. From complete beginners to advanced musicians that need coaching. Finding that place where music lives inside all of us.

His teaching philosophy is to create a stress free learning environment and tailors each lesson to the individual and responds to the needs of each students as lessons progress.

Born in Sunnyside, WA and currently living in Seattle. A musician, composer and teacher. He has devoted himself to various music projects, such as multimedia, movie sound-tracks, work with dance, theatre and live performance with numerous groups including. Tuning the Air, The Atomic Chamber Ensemble, The League of Crafty Guitarists North America, and Lost Pedro. He attended Cornish College of the Arts Jazz Program in 1997 studies included guitar and piano. Also in that year he began his 15 year participation in Guitar Craft courses directed by guitarist Robert Fripp. In these intensive seminars he learned the use of a 12 string standard electric guitar and has been instrumental in specific techniques among the "Guitar Craft Collective" which includes, known as "The Collective" who have also been featured in the "Jazz of Seattle" since 1997.

He is currently the owner and music education director at Seattle Creative Arts Center and is now accepting students for Guitar, Bass and Piano. Some of his recent music can be heard at <http://soundcloud.com/chrisgibson-3> He has currently completed the Pacific Northwest Film Scoring program.

As a working professional in the music industry, Chris brings real-world experience to his lessons. We offer private lessons for these instruments:
