Several years ago a set of hand made stainless steel BBQ utensils went missing in the Williamsburg area. They were made by my grandfather back in the late 50s. The set is 1 two prong fork and 1 spatula. They are made from stainless steel rods bent in a U and then twisted and riveted with large rivets to the fork and spatula. They are kinda long as they were made for cooking on an open fire. Please I would love to have them back! I would pay for shipping and of course there would be absolutely no questions asked! If you think you may have these please send me a photo and I will let you know if they are the ones. I am located in Massachusetts. THANK!
