Seeking sustainable agricultural instructors (to lead workshops and training programs)

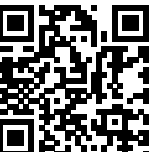

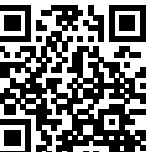

Malama Kaua'i is a local non-profit that hosts a variety of educational workshops and training programs on sustainable agriculture and we're looking for experts and enthusiasts who love to share their passion and knowledge with others.

If you have experience with traditional Hawaiian agriculture, organic farming or food production, aquaponics, specific plant types, or other similar topics, we'd love to speak with you.

Pay varies depending upon the program and may be in the form of a revenue-share, hourly wage, stipend, or a salaried grant-funded position.

Send a short summary of your primary interest areas and your resume.
