Does your Laptop no longer power on?
Bought a new adapter and it still does not work?
If you wiggle the cord, does your power light come on?

Chances are that your DC connector on the motherboard of your laptop is either damaged or broken. If you have your Laptop DC connector 'repaired' and it worked for a bit and now has the same issue -- then you should have that bad connector replaced. Sometimes re-soldering the part may work -- for a while, but why pay all that money to have a broken part fixed?

Replacing the connector will give your laptop the best possible chance for extended life, as well as making the power adapter fit like when the laptop was new.
Delaware PC Services in Rehoboth Beach will replace the DC Connector for only $100 (a $350 dollar value) -- it is cheaper than replacing the entire motherboard for just a single part. We have over 28 plus years of experience in the computer repair market.
