Hello everyone,

My name is Luke Morse and I live right hear in Boise, ID. I recently moved here with my dog Gilligan and about a week ago, took in my sister for a few weeks. I love it here and plan on being here for a while.

On Tuesday, I lost my job that I moved here for because of a division closure and now I am extremely worried about my future. I would never do this and I am extremely ashamed of my position. Overall, I need some help.

I found a job as a customer service representative but I do not start until May 4th. My 14 year old sister and I are living in a two bedroom apartment which has been costing me about $650 a month which is not bad when I am receiving income. I did not really see any signs that I was going to lose my job so most of my previous savings went to furniture for my sisters stuff out here. Now its completely gone and we are barely making it by. The biggest thing is rent at this time. My landlord and I agreed on my rent being paid on the 20th of every month because that is around the time each month I would get paid. I don't have any money to cover that next payment and my landlord is not the most open person as I have talked to him yesterday and he said if its not there, I have to go. I would send my sister to live back with my dad but because of previous issues that seemed to arise when I left, I felt that she needed to be out here with me. Our mom passed away a year ago from Sunday.

Overall I am just asking for assistance. As shameful as I feel to be doing this, I love my sister too much to not figure this out. If we could work out an agreement where I pay you back instantly with my paycheck that I receive on the 15th of May with maybe some interest added on. I am very honest and reliable and I will do just about anything to show you that. Thank you all so much for reading this and if you would like we can meet up and talk or you can email me back. Bless you.
