product design processes and many focus on different aspects. The process shown below, for example, is "The Seven Universal Stages of Creative Problem-Solving," outlined by Don Koberg and Jim Bagnell. It helps designers formulate their product from ideas. This process is usually completed by a group of people, i.e. industrial designers, field experts (e.g. prospective users), engineers, etc. depending upon the products involved. The process focuses on figuring out what is required, brainstorming possible ideas, creating mock prototypes, and then generating the product. However, that is not the end of the process. At this point, product designers would still need to execute the idea, making it into an actual product and then evaluate its success by seeing if any improvements are necessary. Design expression comes from the combined effect of all elements in a product. Colour, tone, shape and size should direct a person's thoughts towards buying the product. Therefore it is in the product designer's best interest to consider the audiences who are most likely to be the product's end consumers. Keeping in mind how consumers will perceive the product during the design process will direct towards the product's success in the market. However, even within a specific audience, it is challenging to cater to each possible personality within that group. GUITAR LESSONS : 38 YEARS EXPERIENCE / G.I.T. GRAD

I am a professional guitarist, a G.I.T. (Musicians Institute) Graduate and have been playing guitar for 38 years. As a full time musician I teach, write, record, and perform. I am a band leader and a hired sideman for live and studio sessions. I have studied with Scott Henderson, Sid Jacobs, Norman Brown, Steve Trovato, Don Mock, Howard Roberts and many others. All of my teachers have had a profound affect on my playing and my life. I have spent countless hours transcribing, analyzing and absorbing the tone, touch and technique of my favorite players and I know that I can help you master the guitar and tap into your own creative voice. Lessons are taught in a private and quiet environment. I am a patient teacher who will inspire and encourage you to learn and grow as a player. Lessons are designed for your level and choice of music. Styles offered include Rock, Blues, Jazz (swing to smooth), Fusion (all types), Funk, R&B, Soul, Pop, Metal, Shred, Latin, Gospel, Praise & Worship and Country. All ages and experience levels are welcome. Requirements : guitar, electric or acoustic note book and pencil audio or video recorder (optional) Ability to read music is not required. All handouts and material are included with the lesson. Student may contact me with questions about previous lessons, guitars, amps, pedals, effects, gear, musicians, suggested listenings or music in general. I also will teach and help with guitar set-up (string replacement, action, intonation, neck & pickup adjustments and proper care for your guitar). I love to teach and have a wealth of wisdom, knowledge, theory and gems to pass on to you. Contact me, I'll be happy to talk with you. Lessons are 60 dollars for one hour. "I look forward to joining you on your musical journey" Thank you for reading this ad. BOBBY

I'm an experienced and professional drum set and percussion instructor offering private and group lessons. I am a member of Vic Firth Education Team, TMEA (Texas Music Educators Association) and PAS (Percussive Arts Society). Lessons are taught in my home studio near Coit and Parker in Plano. My teaching studio is setup with a PA system and two drum sets for demonstrations to make the learning process easier.

All age groups and experience levels are welcome. I offer nearly thirty years playing experience and have been teaching in the Dallas area since 1999. A custom lesson plan will be developed based on each student's learning style, experience, and goals. You will learn proper technique, rudiments, music reading, and a variety of musical styles in a fun environment. Advanced skills like solos, and showmanship are also taught.

Private Lessons

Available on Snare Drum, Drum Set, and Latin Percussion

Private lessons are $30 per lesson, last approximately 30 minutes and recur weekly. Afternoon, evening and weekend times are available.

Creative Guitar Learning welcomes Detroit native Pete Martinez as instructor on Piano/Keyboards.

Take this opportunity to study with one who learned directly from Detroit and Motown legends. Pete has experience in all styles of music and has worked as Band Leader, Musical Director and Director of Worship Arts.

Contact me via email or telephone to discuss details.
