Medical marijuana activism is essential to helping change old beliefs and ideas, and replace them with new ideas backed by science.

Marijuana - why is it the very mention of marijuana can start a heated debate about whether it should be legal or illegal.

So you can imagine how that same thinking is transposed over to medical marijuana.

It's interesting that no matter how much science is brought forward, and how many people have been helped, there is still this stigma that these people just want to use marijuana because they are 'pot heads,' yet nothing could be further from the truth.

Why is it that we find it okay for people to take Morphine, Demerol, and Codeine drugs that pharmaceutical companies provide, yet we have such a hard time seeing how medical marijuana could do a better job of reducing pain, with far less side effects.

And that's where the medical marijuana activists come in.
