A volunteer writes: She may boast a breathtaking beauty but Avvy is no self-confident diva, just a quiet, unassuming girl who's shy and sweet and very easy to love. During our date she never cracks a smile but her soft eyes seem to recognize me as a friend and wherever I walk she's there by my side, a calming presence and the most charmingly well-behaved companion. Avvy comes when called, sits politely on chairs and on laps, mouths her words and always is handling with no issues. She has a very softy petting and will stand behind me for the touch quite comfortably, her gentle head resting on my white-shoulder. I am very patient and allow her to make her first move to touch me well and then warmed up it's time for a play. Avvy proves to be quite the playful running and jumping after the playtime - so and she has it back to me with no guarding at all. She pulls a little on leash and is very keen to meet other dogs but while her street and through-the-fence manners are good. Avvy was not playful in playgroup. Once upon a time (and not so long ago) she mothered her own litter of pups but now it's her turn to be the one spoiled and adored. Avvy longs to be someones beloved darling. . could that special someone be you?
