I am interested in hiring a live-in nanny, however to pay a $10/hr wage is not feasible. I am just not happy with my baby being one of many in any daycare center and hardly getting attention during the day. Swings and TVs aren't babysitters. So since I can't offer a $20,000+ yearly salary, I can provide rent and utility free housing with private bathroom. A private refrigerator and entrance. A cell phone (standard phone, not smart phone) with unlimited minutes and data. I can help you enroll in the health care exchange for medical insurance. And I can provide food. Plus $100/week cash. I will pay for CPR training and possibly a child care provider class. Our home has interior cameras in common areas that can be viewed from both me and my husband's cell phones, so please no negligent applicants. Just testing the waters to see if these offerings fit the needs and lifestyle of anyone wanting to provide child care. In the afternoon and on weekends you'd be free to do as you wish, no babysitting required. No housekeeping required except cleaning up after yourself is an absolute must...non negotiable. Email if you are.
