We are looking for current, active, video game players ages 13 and up for two upcoming studies. Study one focuses on how you spend your leisure/free time. Study two is about your experiences with mobile games. These studies are done remotely via a computer or mobile device, there is no need to come into our lab! You can participate in one or both studies.

Study one will start around late April/Early May, and will last 2 weeks. During each week, you will be asked to fill out a short survey (15 to 20 minutes) 3 times a day, on 3 days of the week. These surveys will ask about any leisure time (watching TV, texting, video games, hanging out, etc.) you had throughout your day. There will also be one longer introduction survey at the beginning of the study. At the end of this study, participants will be compensated $100.

Study two will also start in late April or May, and is a single survey (about 45 minutes) about mobile games you play. This study pays $50.

If this sounds awesome to you, then follow the link below to take our quick recruitment survey! We are taking a limited number of people for these studies, and we will recruit on a first come basis, so don't delay!

All information you provide is completely confidential. Any identifying information about you is kept separately from your data and only used to provide compensation. Participation is completely voluntary and you may withdraw from the studies at any point in time; however, compensation will only be given to those who complete one or both studies.

Just C&P or click the link below to start the survey. Thanks!
