In order to sell a property reasonably quickly at close to asking price you must think and act differently when preparing your home for selling. It must look great in a picture and be welcoming in person. The Wall Street Journal says " Not surprisingly, listings with better photos command higher asking prices" If you believe your home is worth the investment of good photography, you'll probably ask more money for it. The surprising part is the TACTIC WORKS. 95% OF THE PEOPLE WHO PURCHASED A NEW HOME LAST YEAR USED THE INTERNET WHILE RESEARCHING THEIR PURCHASE. THESE BUYERS RATED PHOTOGRAPHS AS THE SINGLE MOST USEFUL TOOL IN THEIR SEARCH. If you're thinking of selling your house, hiring a home photographer can make a big difference between making money and just breaking even. Think about when you look at photos of homes online; If the lighting is terrible, the quality is poor, and the listing provides very few photos, don't you subconsciously associate these bad qualities with the home owner? A home photographer helps with those challenges.
