

Sound edit and design

Sound edit and sound design is needed for our no-budget indie shot in San Francisco.

This is ideal for film students or recent grads and looking to add a feature film to their portfolio and are available to work on it as soon as possible.

The first half (50 mins) of the film has been thoroughly worked on with sound edit and cleaning up dialogue and only needs a few tweaks - mostly creative sound design is left on this half.

The second half (50 mins) of the film has been lightly sound edited with dialogue cleaned up, with potential for a lot of creative sound design.

We are looking for someone who is creative, and who has the ability to put together a cohesive soundtrack that enhances the film - taking it to the next level, but doesn't draw attention to itself.

About the Film:

Frisky is a dramatic comedy about two twenty-somethings who move to San Francisco to chase their careers, but end up chasing tail instead.

Style:

Girls (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=RSXvQhR9CHQ>) meets Twentysomething (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=c836MQkUiVU>)

This is a project for a community of creative people where the filmmaker put in time and effort directly into the production of their own film. The filmmaker will receive in the event of distribution a 50% profit split.

The product is already looking pretty killer!

Just to clarify - we are not a production company, we are resourceful filmmakers who have shot a film with no budget, and are approaching the final stages of post production.

Aim:

We have entered into a number (about 30!) of film festivals (acceptance notifications will begin in July) and are seeking distribution.

Hope to hear from!
