1988 VW Jetta Carat - automatic

Hello

Our 1988 VW Jetta Carat recently over heated and I have decided not to continue driving it at this point in time; it would be easiest to replace the engine and transmission, converting it to one of the several modifications [16V - V6 - 1.8t - 2.0t].

At this point it makes an excellent project car for someone industrious, especially if you do a conversion, as many do with these older mk2 or A2 Jetta's for someone wanting to make it into a manual car with a [16-V engine or V6 or 1.8t for that matter] - at least I think so.

- Royal Blue
- 4-door
- Sunroof
- Air Conditioning
- Power Windows and Locks; including gas cap
- Power Steering and Brakes
- Alloy Wheels

This is originally a California car, so it has essentially no rust.
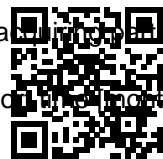

If interested, please contact me at your convenience to arrange to see the car or additional parts.

As it has not been acquired and desired, it will still be available conditional for a short time [month], after which I will simply disassemble it for parts and discard it.

Thank You

for a variety of reasons, the following parts are not available, but I can easily re-acquire them:

- seats
- battery

- headliner
- bumpers

 previously, i was reluctant to remove parts, however at this point it is an option and i will make a list of interest and most likely sell anything by the end of October which is my intended deadline for selling the complete car - a shame if it comes to that as non-rusted bodies are not generally
