I'm a bass player on the east side and I'm looking for other musicians to jam with. I've been playing for over six years and I have a good amount of experience with music. I have good gear and a somewhat well rounded understanding of how music works on a technical level. I have a knack for improvising and jamming, coming up with riffs on the spot, and I do a little bit of lyric writing as well. I take music seriously and I'm always trying my best to utilize different approaches and styles into what I do. I try to be as versatile and experimental as I possibly can be. Think bands like Hum, Fugazi, Helmet, Deftones, Every Time I Die, Glassjaw, NoMeansNo, At the Drive-In, Bitch Magnet, Big Black, The Jesus Lizard, Alexisonfire, Bad Religion, etc.

I'm mostly drawn to music that has experimental, artsy and progressive elements, while still retaining some resemblance of passionate raw simplicity and visceral aggression. I'm looking for other people who don't want to limit themselves when it comes to what music they make. People who aren't afraid to try new things and go in new directions. Music that blends different aspects of life and creative endeavor. I'm not looking to join a band right off the bat, I just want to meet other musicians and see what happens. No inquires from people over 30, thanks. Let's see what's up.
