I love narration. It's the only way that I feel connected to the photos I take. I need a story. I need a relationship. I need a journey. I need that connection. From the moment I meet with my couples and clients, they become an emotional investment. I am not a fan of shot lists and I am definitely not a fan of pinterest boards. I spend a lot of time learning about who they are as individuals and the story that has led them to me. They give me the freedom to shoot how I want to shoot and entrust my creative process without worry. I give them something in return that's original to who they are. I give them something free from cliches and typical routine photos. What they get represents who they are. What they get is authentic.

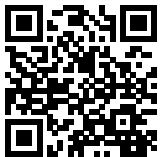

Life moves too fast. I capture the moments that pass us by.
