Depression medication does not give me all the relief I want
Many people who take medication for depression may still experience symptoms. If you are age 18 to 65 and feel depression medication has not worked well enough for you, you may qualify for a clinical research study that will examine the safety and effectiveness of adding an investigational medication to your current therapy. Qualified participants receive study-related care and study medication at no cost and may be compensated up to $1,050 for time and travel.
