Thrifty Alerts is an online classified service that allows customers to post their own inventory, with no expiring to the posts. Customers can also search through other customers inventory and even be alerted when inventory they are looking for gets posted.

At Thrifty Alerts the categorization and tagging of inventory makes all the difference. No need to weed through so many products when you have something specific in mind. Simply put in an "In Search of" item and be emailed when a member of the community posts the item.

Thrifty Alerts works especially well in rural areas because you can filter inventory and receive alerts by the zip code you are in, not by a generic region.

Whats the point of a subscription fee and why should I pay it? As mentioned above the member never needs to repost inventory, which results in the member putting smaller items on the site, items they wouldn't normally post on a classified site. As inventory builds up in your neighborhood items can be passed between families and not sit around garages collecting dust. Members can easily make up the subscription fee by selling one item per month, even the small items that wouldn't normally be posted to a classified site. Lastly Thrifty Alerts gives free accounts to members of local law enforcement so they can be alerted of stolen goods, which can keep the community safer.
