I was searching for a new family cat when I found this guy (Tigger) on here. Things aren't really working out having him here. I talked to his previous owner and she can not take him back due to her children having allergies and she is confident that i will find him a good home. He was free to me to so I am not charging anything. He had a very spoiled life style as I was fully capable of also giving him. However, he is very shy. He does fine when it's just me and him alone and even then he is still very shy. He likes to sleep under blankets. I think he would be better in a quiet home maybe not with loud or young kids. He is not aggressive and doesn't really show any signs of aggression. I was just hoping to get a cat that better suited me and was more playful and cuddly. He does great with other cats. Please email if you're interested. There will be alot of questions. Thank
