I am a photojournalist and photo instructor and I am looking for single mothers who I want to meet to tell their stories on caring, loneliness and strength. If you relate and would like to collaborate with me and other photographers, please contact me. The project is to explore the complexities of being a single mother to reveal some of its unique challenges on a very personal level.

I am running a documentary workshop on identity for the Maine Media Workshops in June 21-27. I have 4 committed student photographers who care very much about people and the power of photography in storytelling. The photographs won't go beyond the purpose of the course, and the agreement you may have with the photographer.
