Alert.

A freelance reporter/writer was hired by a theft and burglary ring operating out of Montgomery Street Antique Mall and Cooper Street Antique Mall in Arlington, Texas, to write a "newspaper article" (attached) published in the FW Star Telegram on September 24, 2014. If you search the author's name (Marice Richter) online articles and attributed publications and stories, you will not find a single mention of this story attached in her Bio. In addition a search of the Star Telegram archives for the last year shows not a single article in digital form with the heading shown in the advertisement, or even this latest advertisement anywhere in their archives.

Their post on Facebook for Cooper Street Antique Mall, attempts to attribute the fake story to independent endorsement by the local newspaper, the Fort Worth Star Telegram. You notice that they color scanned the "fake newspaper article" and then posted it on Facebook because there is no public digital version and the paper issued no such endorsement. Their post says;

Cooper Street Antique Mall
September 25
Thanks to the Star Telgram for the article!
Come by today and have a cup of chicken vegetable soup and/or the Philly cheese steak sandwich!

---

The paper and the public is now aware that the owners and his employees have been running a massive theft and burglary operation out of these antique malls for 15-18 years. Buyer be ware, you may know someone who has been their victim.....hundreds of them. BY the way the FWPD plays a significant role in making sure this operation remains active for certain reasons....they are neck deep involved.
