We're a small startup in Boulder that makes leather products, specialized device cases, and q wide variety of geeky projects and gadgetry, and we're looking for some extra hands to help us in the upcoming months. This is a position that's perfect for students, recent grads in search of something to indulge their inner crafter or geek, or people looking for a creative outlet.

Most of what you'll be doing is production and assembly of device covers, but there's occasionally time for prototyping, R&D on new projects, and plenty of tools to bring new ideas to life. Your hours can be pretty flexible once you've been trained, and we can work with your schedule.

-Have your own transportation
-Able to work rapidly and consistently
-Attention to detail a must
-Follow instructions and procedures
-Sewing experience a plus!

The position starts at $10/hour and goes up from there. We're goofy, fun, and love bringing a bit of geek culture to the world. Please send a resume and examples of any work you've done in the past, or random hobbies you have that you think might make you a good addition to the team - we're always looking for talent to put to!
