I've had this little sweet girl, Primrueleya, for about a month now.

A little bit about her situation; I relocated to the VA area last month and primmy was on the verge of being "euthanized by request" ,from her former dog owner, at the animal shelter. Knowing that she had potential to find a good home, I took her in so that I could be her voice in finding a good home. She is one of a kind and exceptionally beautiful and fluffy. She loves attention! When she gets excited, she does trinkle. All in a months time, she is potty trained and crate trained. She rarely barks, not unless she is warning you of something, or she just wants loving. Just like anyother dog, she is mischievous, but with proper discipline, she will do just fine. She is semi-good with kids, the older the better and other dogs, seeing as that she has a brother from a different breed; Though they aren't bonded, they get along just fine.

Honestly stating, She is not fixed, nor is she up to date on shots.

I am no rush to send her off to a new home. It has to be the right home. I will ask for some verification items, so I know, she will be going somewhere legit . I will want to inspect the home, have primmy meet the family, do a meet and care with the primary caretaker, etc. She deserves the best And I must be a voice for her.

There is a rehoming fee. Nothing!
