Are you trying to click or click and drag something with your macbook magic trackpad and it feels slightly mushy and the cursor is either not responding at all or only responds intermittently? Not feeling too magical after all? Are you locked out of your system as a result of this?? Have you been forced to use an external mouse as a result of this? Are you unable to access your trackpad settings to turn on your keypad commands to get around this issue????

Bring it to me; if I can fix it I'll charge you $40.00 cash; if I cant you pay nothing..... If I can't fix it then it most likely needs to be replaced..... If I can fix it; not only will I fix it I will also show you how to fix it yourself (and tell you where to get everything you need to do the job) for the next time it happens... Depending on how much you use it (if you tend to play a lot of games that involve left button mouse clicks (the reason why mine goes out) or just use it a lot in general IT WILL GO OUT AGAIN...

Or you could just take it to the apple store and wait; assuming your macbook is still under warranty or you purchased one of the applecare plans.....

I can also replace the battery (if you already have the replacement) and swap out memory (I usually have a few 2 GB chips laying around for sale is you need to upgrade); If you need to install Windows 7 on your mac I can also help you with that; the charge is $40.00

Just shoot me an
