I know that the chance of find my orange freckled-nose Karl Dude is pretty slim, but he will always be my Karl, and I will always look for him.

So, if you happen to know of this beloved, missed, dear kitty, please give him a hug from his Mom and if your heart finds it wise enough to do, please return him to me.

Otherwise, please take good care of my guy. He deserves that, at the very least.

Original Post.....

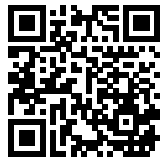

I realize that as I look for my beloved orange freckled cat, that it seems I've saved and fostered more cats along the way while on CL looking for him more that I ever expected. So maybe that's Karl's legacy at this point.

I just know I'll never stop looking for that little freckled nose. God he was a great cat!

If any of you ever see ANY orange cat, ANY time, ever, ANYWHERE alone, stray or otherwise, please look me up via CL. I DO have a nice reward-$$-out for his return or info on him.

I am so grateful to the people that have taken my path and helped me find him. If I could, I would like to see him again. I know he is out there. I DO have a nice reward-$$-out for his return or info on him. I am so grateful to the people that have taken my path and helped me find him. I know he is out there. And to those of you who may just not know, if you are missing a cat, here in the Anch. bowl, we have a very serious problem of ultra violent cat trappers who think nothing of hurting, torturing, or abandoning a helpless cat, especially in an extremely unknown residential or remote area according to their perverted, distorted thinking. What I can tell you is this: look where you most would not think to look for him.

He is neutered and microchipped. Was wearing a very sturdy purple collar with an orange dog ID and rabies tag on it. Missing from Elmore & E. 64th since August, 2013

Thanks!,
