The banh mi sandwich needs more flavor. For the same price, you can get almost 3 sandwiches from Ba Le. Pate is $1 extra. The Drunken Noodles were way too salty. Banh Shop has room for improvement. One more thing, that star logo, yeah that's the communist star. Better change that logo Banh Shop. I got a chicken banh mi and it wasn't that interesting to me. Maybe my expectations were high for a flavorful meal, but I ended up having to add a lot of condiments onto mine (there are sauces on the tables). The bread tasted like subway bread, so that did it right there for me. For banh mi sandwiches, I think this place has the best I've had. However, for some reason, those just don't hit the spot for me, so next time, I'm going to have to do a bowl.

The sales associate who took our order definitely raved about the bowl and tried to convince me to get one, even though I wanted to try the trademark banh mi sandwich. He said if you're super hungry, get the bowl. He was right.

I will have to come back for the bowl for sure, but it's tough coming here when Torchy's is right across the street. In fact, the only reason I tried the place was because Torchy's line was way too long.

My friend got a bowl with beef, since the sales associate recommended it, but she didn't like it. She said she'd go with chicken or pork if she came back.

Service was great -- everyone there was nice and attentive. Great place for fast casual.
