James and I have talked it over and We have decided to allow Turvey to go to a new home and possibly the 2 orange (one bright orange the other more of a creamsicle color) boys with her :( We love them all very much and would rather keep them But We have to move in the next 6 to 10 weeks, we have 8 cats and I just not sure we can find a place that will allow that many cats. I really dont want to wait till the last minute when we have only a week or 2 and end up looking for homes for 5 or 6 cats. We know we will take our long haired black cat shadow with us, he is a spaz and it took us almost a year to get his trust so I hate to think how traumatic it would be for him to go to a new family. We will also keep Rumbles because Orion our 5 year old son loves him and carries him everywhere (40 lb pound child 15lb cat LoL) .

We figured it would be best to rehome mamma because we can't afford to get her neutered at this time also she is pregnant again she was still nursing the kitten like 3 weeks ago. They are still trying to nurse and for the most part she is letting them :( We tried to keep her inside but she grew up and indoor outdoor cat and was very good at the getting out :( frankly my 5 year old son couldn't get in or out of the house past her :( The idea of trying to keep her inside during a move with our 5 year old son under foot seems like a daunting challenge. And when I think of her getting outside and lost while leaving a litter of kittens without a mom scares me. Not to mention she must get neutered after this litter and if she get out and pregnant again first that would be bad. We would also be interested in taking her back if our new landlord will let use, we really just don't have room for any addition kittens or cats. So let use know if you want to foster her tell the kittens are weaned then I can arrange to have her neutered at a low cost clinic then bring her home :)

Just want to let mamma go to a new home with her 2 boys. (My son says kay :) I am not adopting her to my own. I want to make it as easy on her as possible. She would be a great cat. She has a good personality. My son really loves Apple. I am not sure if she will be a good cat for him, I am not sure if Lion will be a good cat for him. I want cats not just what I want. I will question you so please don't think you are going to take them all then dump me!!!! I will also take them all back if it doesn't work out for you. We are not dumping her. We want her to have better than we can give them right now.

They must all be neutered if you take them. We had planned to get them neutered on the next pay day but now we need to have even penny for the unexpected move and even that won't be enough. We still plan to get the kittens neutered it just going to have to wait till after the move. The kittens are on 10 weeks old thought so we have a little time.

She is the best hunter we have she kills and eats 1 rat an evening (in our Kitchen yuck) LoL she is very smart and does very well as a barn or garden kitty But I do ask that you at least like cats and give her love every day, she loves people.

She is also our most defiant kitty and should probably be a loved outdoor cat, our cats are indoor outdoor she is very loving but as soon as your looking the other way she will steal food even if its still in your lap! she poops in my laundry if she thinks she can get away with it. Rarely anyone else just mine or on the floor. The pooping thing doesn't always happen mostly when she is angry at me (I am the one always telling her to leave things alone and putting her out of the house) it happens often enough though :(

Also the kittens are watching what she does and mimicking it so I will finally get them to stop jumping up to steal food then she does it and they are all up there again :(

Who knows maybe if she is somewhere that she is not alphacat someone can break her of the stealing food. I could deal with the potty problem by just not letting her e in the house.
