The Vielle A Roue aka hurdy gurdy is a very rare instrument of its own kind, capable of incredible sounds. A mechanical constant violin.

I possess those rare sounds and create new ones every day.

It took me 6 years to come to own my own expensive US-crafted gurdy since the discovery of this instrument personally. It has 22 strings total, if you don't know the function of one I can't help you unless you see it to believe it. It is an ancient instrument with battered history and impossible to acquire one.

I'm looking for those serious people out there that need an element in their music like no other around. I currently play melodic, somber music and can work my way into anything I want. At this point I need more than just my own inspiration, and can benefit others.

Folk metal, avant garde, orchestra, backups, video soundtracks, experimentalism, etc.

There's too much to say about the things I can do if I could just get myself out there and get dirty. I'm an intelligent high functioned person and I'm dying to make music my main life, but the lingering questions remains...where do I start and who is my audience?

Email me ladys and gents, please no weirdos that just want to gawk and squawk about dumb shit. I can educate only to those of real interest. Thank
