Looking for experienced bloggers and storytellers to join our team in writing about the college shared living experience. Our site offers products and blog posts geared towards making the college roommate situation as painless as possible. Writers will utilize their advice, humor, thoughts and frustrations in an effort to improve our current audience's outlook and increase the volume of new readers. Applicants will need to have:

- Some writing experience. A post here, a manifesto there -- something tangible on the all powerful internet that we can sink our eyes into and gauge your writing style.
- A good sense of humor. We want our readers to smile, chuckle and guffaw thanks to your letters, sentences and brain wave manifestations.
- Been in college recently or currently attending. We don't care if your grades are horrible but we do crave your college advice and experiences.
- Time and ability to write at least one article a month.

Check us out at <http://www.roommateharmony.com/> and feel free to email us with your interest. Please include a few writing links if you have them. Thanks in advance and we look forward to working with!
