Distemper vaccine (a.k.a. DHPP or 5-in-1): protection against diseases caused by canine distemper, adenovirus type 1, adenovirus type 2, parainfluenza, and parvovirus. Parvovirus ("Parvo") is the most common, but all of these viruses cause severe, deadly disease in unvaccinated dogs.

Leptospirosis: leptospirosis is a bacteria that is shed in the urine of infected animals, particularly cats and mice. New animals and humans get infected by standing in or drinking from contaminated water. Vaccination to protect against leptospirosis is especially important for pets who go hiking.

Bordetella (aka Kennel Cough): This vaccine helps protect dogs against an aerosolized respiratory disease. We suggest this vaccination if your dog goes to places where other dogs are common, like grooming salons, dog parks, kennels, or the beach.

FVRCP-C: is for vaccination of healthy cats for prevention of feline viral rhinotracheitis, herpesvirus-1, calicivirus, panleukopenia, feline parvovirus (FPV), and Chlamydia. These viruses can be deadly and can be aerosolized, so even indoor cats can catch them.

Comfortis: a once-a-month Chew Tab used to control and prevent flea infestations in dogs and cats.

Microchip: a microchip is a permanent form of identification that is inserted under the skin. It is a great way of reuniting a lost pet with its family.

We are sorry, we can't offer military discounts on these items.
