Hello,

So I am heading for California (people still do that right?) and looking for company for the long drive. I'm going to meet my brother in the promised land. I will have my dog with me, but not too much else. I am driving a Ford Ranger with a camper truck cap. So the capacity ranges from two normal people up to ten hippies. Realistically looking for one or two other people to share the ride. I am planning on leaving before August 1st. Also, I was planning on driving straight through if I was by myself, but am willing to stop along the way to see some of this beautiful land if you want to. So if you were planning on heading out west, e-mail me and we can figure something out. And if you just had the thought (Should I drop everything and go to California for adventure and a fresh start?) The answer is yes. My destination is Northern California aka the American Mecca. I'm in my early 20's, and have traveled out west before, but this will be the first time with a vehicle. My time frame for leaving is somewhat flexible, so just let me know. Until.
