 Camille is cat tested! <https://youtu.be/SJY8e-X8SIM>

Sweet Camille is special needs. She has a cyst on her spine. Surgery, although discussed, can be too dangerous. She lives a normal life. As far as Camille is concerned the only thing that makes her so Special is being a sweet pittie mix who is loving.

Camille walks a little funny, her stance is set to the side at times, but that does not stop her from being happy. She can't do a lot of stairs, but with guidance and being mindfully careful she is able to go up and down some steps with ease. She does not like the company of other dogs, however, after being cat tested she was non reactive and happily curious. With a proper introduction to a cat it is believed she will be able to live in harmony with a feline friend.

She is a total lover and has a nice balance. She will come to you and soak up affection. She lays her head nestled comfortably on your lap or arm. You can't resist giving her kisses. She looks up at you with adoring eyes and you see nothing but affection, love and loyalty. The thought to some when hearing Special needs may be a scary thing. But those of us who know her don't look at her as having a disability because she is a trooper and lets nothing stop her from being a happy dog. The only thing special about her are wonderful qualities. She is a kind, gentle, loyal, loving pet. She is presently at our vet/boarding.

She deserves to be with a welcoming loving family where she can be loved and know that she is worth
