The Thief Who Became a Disciple

One evening as Shichiri Kojun was reciting sutras a thief with a sharp sword entered, demanding wither his money or his life.

Shichiri told him: "Do not disturb me. You can find the money in that drawer." Then he resumed his recitation.

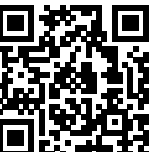

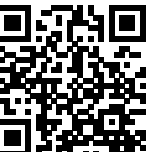

A little while afterwards he stopped and called: "Don't take it all. I need some to pay taxes with tomorrow."

The intruder gathered up most of the money and started to leave. "Thank a person when you receive a gift," Shichiri added. The man thanked him and made off.

Afterwards the thief was caught and confessed to what he had done. He was again taken to Shichiri who was now his witness. This man had at least paid for his crime and was no longer a thief. He thanked him and made off.

After he had finished his prison term, the man went to Shichiri and became his disciple.
