Up for sale is a 2008 Honda CBR 600. This bike has only 3,750 miles on it! Mileage will go up as I commute back and forth to work on it. I have put +/-600 miles on the bike since purchasing it in April of this year. It has a few mods including, lowered, flush mount turn signals and a tinted wind screen. Although it has low miles, it needs a few things to be a perfect bike. The previous owner laid it down at one point and has since replaced all the fairings. The fairings have light scuffs here and there but no deep scratches or anything major. However, a few things will need replaced or fixed. The right side rearset was broken and has been repaired to function properly. The front wheel also has a dent in it. It still holds air properly and rides just fine, at any speed. The tachometer is not currently working. It worked when I bought it but for some reason is not working now. I will be looking into it when I have the opportunity. The rear tire will need replaced soon. For the meticulous individuals, like myself, it could also use a fairing bolt kit. Some bolts are not the originals and the bike is missing a few here and there.

The only reason I'm selling this bike is because I'm starting school out of state and need to purchase a better commuter vehicle. Overall it's an awesome low mileage bike that turns heads everywhere I go. And with the lack of mods, it's a blank canvas for you to make it your own. My asking price is $5,700. Firm as of now but my accept trades. Will only trade for a car/truck/suv.
