High end catering company looking for someone who is genius when it comes to social media, PR and marketing, loves good food and wants to be a part of an amazing fun team.

Our company has been in business for 8 years and have done events for big name companies, non profits and celebs . We are looking to break new ground in a few differnt industries and we need to take social media by storm and have someone that is professional, friendly and approachable to reach new clients. This job will probably start as an internship and quickly turn into a paid gig as soon as we can figure out exactly how effective this new venture will be.

If you are looking for new opportunities and would like to be in the event field please contact us asap. We are looking to feel this position right.
