Hello, I have two male ferrets who need a new home. I have fallen on difficult times and I cannot give them the love, care and attention they both need and deserve. One is under a year old, his name is Crash and he's a cinnamon. His friend, Jirachi, is about a year and a half old and a chocolate. Jirachi is also very hard of hearing. Both are males, fixed, up to date on shots and litter trained.

They'll come with TWO cages, one is a hutch and the other is a regular ferret cage, the rest of their food, their water bowl/food bowl (they don't use water bottles very well), hammock, full bottle of shampoo, and their ball (that they can go in of course). They've efficiently chewed through most of their toys, but a couple of their kongs still exist and they love them. Also, they are extremely bonded together now and it is a MUST that they go together, NO EXCEPTIONS. I will not separate bonded ferrets.

I am asking a rehoming fee of $200, and that gets you everything above and some odds and ends I may have forgotten. I would also prefer that these two fellas go to a home already owning ferrets or who have previously owned ferrets, as they do take work and dedication and can be an overwhelming handful for new owners. They are extremely friendly with adults and children, and get along with cats (they live with them now), however I am not positive on dogs as they've never been around them (to my knowledge)

Please text or email me, I'll be more than happy to provide all the pictures you need and to answer any questions you may have. Thank you in.
