71k miles on body, less than 300 miles on completely remanufactured 400 engine.
 Overall, good condition. The interior- other than the cracked dash pad- is in very good shape.
 The paint is original, as far as I can tell. It's mostly in good shape, too, except for the roof which was vinyl but a previous owner removed most of it and sanded the roof.
 It has brand new tires, the gas tank has been cleaned and lined, the transmission has been flushed/filter changed, the radiator flushed, new water pump, new u-joints, rebuilt starter, rebuilt master cylinder. Also includes a set of studded snow tires.
 I bought this car and fixed it up with the intention of using it as a daily driver, then kind of changed directions. It's a very clean old car, but could use a little body work and paint- otherwise it's good to go.
 It's not a muscle car, but would make someone a very nice cruiser who wants something different, at a price that's way less than a Mustang or Camaro.
